The `skim_without_charts()` function revealed that there are no missing values or whitespaces. Thus, we'll be working with 1000 observations & 17 variables. The mean values for all numeric variables are as shown in the mean column under `skim_without_charts()` results.

#Data cleaning ### a. Standardize column names

names(combined_branches) <- tolower(names(combined_branches))

b. Rename columns so they're more meaningful

names(combined_branches)[14] <- 'total.price' # cogs to total price names(combined_branches)[9] <- 'tax' #tax.5 to tax names(combined_branches)[10] <- 'total.price.with.tax' #total to total revenue

c. Convert data type for date column from chr to date

library(lubridate)

```
##
Attaching package: 'lubridate'
```

```
The following objects are masked from 'package:base':
##
date, intersect, setdiff, union
```

```
combined_branches$standard_date <- lubridate::mdy(combined_branches$date) d.Convert data type for time column from chr to time

combined_branches$standard_time <- lubridate::hm(combined_branches$time)
```

The tax column & gross income have the same values, so we can do away with either of them Select the columns to be used - delete date, time, gross.margin.percentage,gross.income, won't be used in our analysis

combined_branches2 <- combined_branches[, -c(11,12,15,16)]

e.Rearrange columns

library(dplyr)
```

```
combined_branches2[, c(1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,12,9,10,11,13,14,15)]

The product.line that's more popular among females is fashion accessories & health & beauty among males. The business could stock up more of health & beauty products for males. The low ratings from men could be attributed to this because it's assumed that more health & beauty products would be bought by females compared to males. This may lead to branches not stocking up well leading to dissatisfaction among male customers.

c.About revenue

revenue_summary <- branches_reordered %>%
  group_by(product.line) %>% summarise(
    sum_revenue = sum(total.price.with.tax),
    average_revenue = mean(total.price.with.tax)
  ) %>%
  arrange(-sum_revenue) #substitute average with sum & v.versa
```

```
View(revenue_summary)

Product line that generated the most revenue was Food and beverages, at over 20 million naira, followed by Sports and travel with over 19.8 million naira. Health & beauty products generated the least revenue, probably for reasons that had been stated earlier, related to poor stocking of male products who were the most dissatisfied, especially with this product line. The highest average revenue is for Home and lifestyle products i.e. over 121,000, followed by Sports and travel with over 119,000 The branches should therefore do the most to maintain sales for Food and beverages, Sports and travel & Home and lifestyle products at a high.

Extract hour from each time

branches_reordered <- branches_reordered %>% mutate(

payment_per_hour <- branches_reordered %>%
  group_by(hour) %>%
  summarise(
    invoice_count = length(invoice.id)
  )
```

View(payment_per_hour)

The time here refers to time payment was made. Most payments were made in the 19th hour of the day. Many payments were also made in the 10th, 13th & 15th hours. These implies that many people prefer to make payments for their invoices during their break times if they're at work or after work. This could help the businesses decide what times they need more staff, also which payment modes are easier & quicker for both client & business.

e. About payment methods

epay and cash seem to be the most favorable during those hours when most payments are made therefore the systems need to be up, especially during the 19th, 10th, 13th & 15th hours. Staff also need to be available during those times to receive the cash.
